Stony Plain and District

Good progress is being made by Contractor Strass and his staff on the big new-style bungalow being built on First street west for Dr. Walton. The plumbing and electric work is being done by A. E. Michael (Stony Plain Hardware), and the furnace work by Oppertshausers.

The local board of health has issued the usual spring circulars to householders, asking them to comply with the Health regulations regarding the clean up on their premises.

Stony's U. F. Local Meets

This Local held its regular meeting Thursday, with a fair attendance. Secretary Herbert read a communication from the Economic branch of the Federal Dept. of Agriculture, asking for returns as to the progress made by the Local along co operative lines.

A communication was received from United Grain Growers, Winnipeg, giving a list of articles and prices, and offering strong inducements to members who club in for a large order.

Mr. Moore, sales manager of the Alberta Co-op. Ass'n, gave a very interesting address on the workings of his company, and quoted numerous articles and prices, which may be obtained at the Edmonton Supply depot.

Quite an interesting discussion took place on the subject of the season's supply of gas, kerosene and oils, as several of the members present are heavy users of these in their farm work.

When the matter of electing delegates to the U. F. Nominating convention came up, C. Propp, W. Propp, A. Wolfe, P. W. Trautman were listed as delegates. The number of delegates allowed not being known, it was decided to elect 2 and 2 alternates. On a vote being taken, the result showed the delegates were elected as listed.

The U. F. Nominating convention will be held at 2 p.m. Friday, May 23, at Stony Plain, although some Locals preferred Wabamun or Dufield as a meeting place.

Can "Good" Be Accomplished By "Force"?

Through the ages as man has struggled upward from his cave-dwelling state to his present condition of semi-civilization for it requires only a hurried glance through the columns of any daily paper any day to prove that man is not yet fully civilized,—he has carried with him the brute instinct to try and accomplish things by force rather than by persuasion; instead of trying to win support to his views and convictions, he has tried to force it. The more civilized, the better educated man becomes, the more does he rely upon appeals to reason instead of having resort to force. None the less, the state of the nations today, and our tendency to resort to the power of the legislation and law to enforce opinions upon others, reveals how largely we still depend on force to govern our everyday affairs.

The question, therefore, naturally arises: Has any definite lasting good ever come to humanity through the coercive action of force? Could one find a single, unquestionable instance in the whole range of human history where compulsion has been the direct and sole agency in changing the mental attitude, the belief, the convictions or the conscience-sense of any one normal intelligence? Without reserve one may venture to say "No" to both questions.

There is profound truth in Butler's couplet: "He that compiles against his will is of his own opinion still." One may be persuaded to change one's mind, to take a different viewpoint, to espouse another belief, to modify or discard a long-held conviction, to give conscience a new direction, and through it all to act differently—the action being either good or bad according to the prevailing general opinion; but it is sincerely to be doubted that force, no matter what its form or its avowed purpose, ever has or ever will bring about the only thing—a change of mind and heart—that is necessary to produce a new line of action. Without the voluntary conversion of the individual mind and heart, that is, of thought and conscience, there can be no reasonable expectancy of bringing about, definitely, permanently and dominantly, a new condition—social, economic, political, ethical, or moral. All our social reformers, our political leaders, our legislators, would do well to ponder this thought and pay closer heed to the lessons of experience and history.

If we would study impartially the action of unrelaxed force directed with the ostensible purpose of producing eventual good, we may turn our eyes toward Russia today. True, the conflicting reports coming out of the country advise us to draw conclusions with a certain reserve; yet there is enough of what appears to be authentic to warrant the present view of the Soviet Government of Russia is using compulsion in the fullest meaning of the term, to impose its minority, compactly organized will upon the unorganized great majority of that vast country.

The Communists may tell us, as well as some three-fourths of the people of Russia, that persuasion, through "propaganda," is their chief agency for the building of a "New Russia," but it is propaganda backed by terrorism. Putting the most charitable construction upon the Soviet's methods for the complete communication of Russia, they are trying to do what they consider to be good practically altogether by the exercise of force. A marvelously organized minority seeks to compel a helplessly disorganized majority to accept without question its views as to what is best for the political, social, economic and moral well-being of the whole.

And all history tells us that this cannot be done. Reform by force lasts just so long as the force which brought it about is strong enough to maintain it. Force not only invites opposition, but generates it. And soon or late, the opposing force becomes the more powerful, and we have another more compulsory "reformation." But we cannot say confidently that out of it all has come a single, definite step of progress. Force is the antithesis of co-operation, and without co-operation of all the interests involved there can be no genuine progress.

What is true of Russia just now, would be equally true of any other country, or state, or community. No matter how desirable the proposed or initiated reform may be, force, if applied to it, eventually will defeat it. Without the voluntary and earnest co-operation of a pronounced majority of all concerned even unquestioned good is not likely to be achieved. And surely no intelligent person would be content with forced good.

Too Little Blood the Trouble

Mrs. Jas. A. Haugh, Bridgewater, N.S., writes:—"I was badly run down and very weak. So much so I could scarcely do my housework. My nerves were affected; my indigestion poor; I had continued headaches and could not get a restful night's sleep. Different remedies failed to be of benefit and I was growing discouraged. One day, however, I saw an advertisement of a case similar to mine which had been relieved by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, so I decided to try them. A few weeks' use of the pills fully restored my health and now my household duties are a pleasure instead of a torture."

Mrs. Hough's whole trouble was that she had too little blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were of aid to her because they renewed and purified her blood and that good blood promoted good health, for where good blood abounds disease cannot exist.

You can get these Pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

NEW APPOINTMENT

R. G. McNEILLIE

Prominent among the spring promotions of Canadian Pacific Railway officials was the appointment of R. G. McNeillie, as assistant passenger traffic manager of eastern lines, with headquarters at Montreal. Mr. McNeillie, who was general passenger agent at Winnipeg for eight years, left at the end of April for the east, his new appointment becoming effective May 1.

Mr. McNeillie entered the service of the Canadian Pacific Railway in 1901, as a stenographer in the general passenger department, at Winnipeg, becoming chief clerk in 1905. In that year he became acting district passenger agent at Nelson, B.C., and district passenger agent at Calgary, in 1910. He was promoted in 1913 to the position of assistant general passenger agent, western lines, with headquarters at Winnipeg, becoming general passenger agent in 1922.

Before his departure for Montreal, Mr. McNeillie was remembered by the members of the passenger department from the head of the lakes to Field, B.C., and at Minneapolis with a handsome liqueur set, with cut glass decanters and glasses, and a wardrobe suit case, the presentation made by C. E. McPherson, who is now acting in an advisory capacity to the passenger department.

Waging War On Accidents

Only 15 per cent. of safety can be assured by perfection of mechanical detail and the remaining 85 per cent. is a matter of education, declared W. E. Darling, of Cincinnati, before the Ontario Safety Convention. Mr. Darling, a blind man, told an attentive audience of his own personal experience, of an accident which brought disfigurement and loss of sight, and he urged with eloquence that the work of preventing industrial accidents should be prosecuted with unremitting energy.

Over Thirty Million Dollars Invested In Industries Using Clay From Canada's Deposits

Canada is fortunate in possessing resources in many types of clay employed in the manufacturing industries. In a list of 35 types of manufacture in the Dominion, clay of one type or another appears among the supplies for 24 of them. It is used in large amounts in the making of such materials as cement, paper, and textiles. It is even used as a purifier of land and oils. Its greatest use, however, is in the so-called clay-working industries in which over a million and a half tons of various types of clay enter into the composition of the products each year. These industries represent an invested capital of over $30,000,000 and employ almost 6,000 men.

These types of clay differ greatly in physical properties such as color in the natural and burned state, plasticity, strength when dry and burned, shrinkage, vitrification range and refractoriness. The clay used in the clay-working industries are classified according to the purposes for which they are adapted. For example, there are pottery clays, including china clay or kaolin and ball clay used in the compounding of porcelain; stoneware clay for making vitrified ware, and earthenware clay for making the more porous earthenware; refractory clays capable of withstanding very high temperatures used for the manufacture of firebricks; sewer pipe clays which produce a dense impervious body capable of taking a wet glaze for the making of sewer pipes and similar products; and brick and tile clays and shales for the manufacture of structural brick and tile and farm drain tile.

The pottery clay cannot be said to be plentiful so far as distribution is concerned but there are a number of deposits of importance, particularly of china clay in Quebec and British Columbia; of ball clay in Saskatchewan; and of stoneware and earthenware clays in Nova Scotia, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Fireclays are graded according to their refractoriness or the temperature which they can withstand in service, ranging from low heat duty. The high heat duty or high grade fireclays are of rather rare occurrence in Canada but the lower grades are of broader distribution. With the exception of Prince Edward Island and Manitoba, all the provinces of Canada are known to possess deposits of fireclay though some of the deposits are too remote from the markets to be of immediate value.

In the manufacture of building brick and structural and drain tile, common surface clays and shales are used and, to a lesser extent, low grade fireclays. Canada has immense resources of such clays and shales suitable for making good quality brick of a wide range of texture and color, distributed through the nine provinces, and there is ample evidence that good use is made of them. Close observers of conditions in Canada and the United States are struck by the greater proportion of brick structures, especially dwellings, in Canada.

In the ceramics laboratories of the department of mines which were established for the testing of clays and as an aid to the clay-working industries, a staff of engineers and assistants is engaged on various investigations bearing upon the problems of manufacture. Subjects of general interest to groups of ceramic manufacturers are investigated in detail, and technical advice and assistance in minor problems are freely given to individual manufacturers. The objects constantly being worked for are the improving and cheapening of the processes of manufacture and the aiding of the industry to produce better and wider ranges of wares.

The value of these services has recently been demonstrated through the successful outcome of an investigation of the drying of brick made from a certain type of clay very common in the prairie provinces. Bricks made from this clay are very difficult to dry without cracking even when the utmost care is exercised. A process was worked out and placed in operation in a plant with the result that the drying time was reduced to less than half, the drying loss practically eliminated and the finished brick greatly improved in quality. At this one plant a saving of many thousands of dollars was effected. The process which is applicable to many plants has since been adopted by several.

Co-Operation Of British National Farmers' Union Is Provided

Stressing the fact that residents of the Old Country were "out for cheap food" and promising co-operation of the National Farmers' Union in giving publicity to the World Grain Exhibition and Conference to be held in 1932, Warner Baxter, Birmingham, England, past president of the Union, addressed a meeting of the Regina Board of Trade held at the Hotel Saskatchewan under the auspices of the agricultural division of the Board.

Mr. Baxter stated co-operation of the National Farmers' Union of Great Britain in hosting the World Grain Exhibition and Conference to be held in Regina, in 1932, would be forthcoming, and said that, through the 130,000 members of the union, the publicity through the Old Country would reach almost every possible exhibitor.

If assurance was given that exhibits sent over to Canada for the exhibition in Regina would be given a good display, he said that there was no reason why a large number of exhibits should not be shown at the grain exhibition.

First Class Equipment Pays

Enables Farmer To Increase Production At Lower Cost

The three important factors in the cost of producing crops are land, labor and capital, and the human labor factor is the only one which is higher today than it was fifteen years ago, a statement prepared by officials of the Dominion Department of Agriculture shows. Field husbandmen therefore, stress the importance of making the hired man's wages count by supplying him with first class equipment so that wherever possible he may be able to do literally two days work in one. This is where modern farm machinery comes in. Eastern Canada crops take 20 hours labor per acre to harvest; Western Canada crops harvested with horse-drawn outfits take 11 hours labor per acre, and harvested with the use of the new combine-harvester the labor cost is only 2.5 hours per acre.

Princess Mary's Second Son In Line To Inherit Property

Princess Mary's second son, the Hon. Gerald David Lascelles, who is now five years old, may become the owner of sugar plantations and other property in Barbados, West Indies, under the will of his grandfather, the late Earl of Harewood, of Harewood House, Leeds. The earl left untestated property of the gross value of $386,000, with net personality $293,258. He left the plantations on trust for his son, the Hon. Edward Cecil Lascelles, and heirs in tail male, whom he left, to Princess Mary's son and his heirs in tail. Mr. Edward Lascelles is married, but has no children.

Western Farmers Living Up To Their Reputation For Optimism and Work

A. E. Warren, vice-president of the Western region of the Canadian National Railways, reports that both farmers and business men of the prairie country are more hopeful than was the case a few months ago. He comes to this conclusion after completing his latest trip through the West. Mr. Warren remarks that, "with his usual courage, the prairie farmer is not permitting market prices and discouraging reports to interfere with his work," and says that, except in isolated cases, the acreage being seeded this year is not being reduced. "Conditions favorable to the crop agent for the moment, and the rural atmosphere may be described as quite cheerful."

As suggesting an improvement in economic conditions in Canada generally, Mr. Warren's observations tend to bear out what his "chief," Sir Henry Thornton, has just remarked in New York. Sir Henry reports that business activity in Canada is steadily increasing and that normal conditions may again prevail by August. It is also of interest, in connection with Canadian conditions, to note the decision of the Federal Reserve Board of the United States to facilitate throughout the republic the acceptance of the Canadian dollar at par.

Western farmers are doing their full part in Canada's nation-wide effort to right himself after one or two unfortunate occurrences that served to injure, though far from imperil, her economic fabric, these lying in partial crop failure, and the stock market crash of last year. Western farmers are doing this in their own interest and in the national interest. And they are doing it in the main by "sawing wood" and maintaining their traditional determination and cheerfulness. The man who keeps pegging away at his job, who keeps a stiff upper lip, and who carries a smile usually emerges successful, eventually, if not immediately. These are among the attributes and virtues of the average Western farmer, and these things explain why these days he is working overtime on the land with his seedling. Far from permitting himself to be consumed with worry over last year's setback, he is concerning himself with the present and the future and working with commendable and inspiring industry, hope and faith to turn them to account. The psychology of the prairie farmer is a standing rebuke to pessimism.—Regina Morning Leader-Post.

Giant Rudder on Huge Truck

Sixty-seven tons of steel forged into a rudder to steer the 40,000-ton "Empress of Britain," Queen ship of the Canadian Pacific Atlantic fleet, was recently conveyed on the world's largest truck over a hundred miles of highway between Dartington, England, and Glasgow, Scotland, in seven days. The rudder which is 21 feet 9 inches by 20 feet 3 inches, could not be taken by railroad, and was transported on a 14-wheeled vehicle carrying a telephone at the rear from which directions were called to the driver. Harassed by Automobile Association agents, and shadowed by police, long stretches of the road had to be closed to other traffic while it passed and in certain cases telegraph poles had to be shifted temporarily. In some villages on the route there was a clearance of only 14 inches between the rudder and the walls of the houses. The rudder was delivered to the "Empress of Britain" ready to be placed in position.

Frequently one wonders why communists who enjoy all the privileges of liberty, stability, protection and progress in Canada do not go to Soviet Russia, which they claim to admire so much. An explanation of the collective farming policy, printed in Pravda, official soviet publication, explains that the land, live stock and implements belong to the community, which means that so far as the individual is concerned they belong to nobody. The farm workers get from 45 kopecks (22½ cents) to 1 ruble 20 kopecks (80 cents) per day of ten hours. Out of this they must buy their food and clothing and pay their trade union dues.

It is announced that the Royal Empire Society, formerly known as the Royal Colonial Institute, has for the first time awarded its gold medal for the best book of the year of outstanding imperial interest to a Canadian. The recipient of the honor is Dr. Chester W. New, professor of history of McMaster University, and the work thus honored is his volume entitled "Lord Durham, a biography."

First Aerial Traffic Cop

Low Stunt Flying In California Made Appointment Necessary

California boasts of having the first aerial traffic cop. His appointment became necessary, because of a plague of low stunt flying, which is not only dangerous to the aviators but to houses and property, as well as causing untold loss to film companies. In the midst of his "stunting" the aviator will suddenly hear the blast of a siren and then approaching a fast black-and-orange plane bearing the police badge. The new "cop" will not only look after stunts; he will do all he can to avoid aerial congestion, which is becoming a serious matter in California. Other well-known public services have already "taken the air," especially the fire brigade. Forest fires are located by plane, and at the aerodromes in England fire and first-aid planes are always ready for an emergency.

Asthma Doesn't Wear Off Alone. Do not make the mistake of waiting for asthma to wear away by itself. While you are waiting the disease is contracting a stronger hold, and you live in danger of stronger and yet stronger attacks. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy taken early will prevent incipient condition from becoming chronic and saves hours of awful suffering.

JESUS TEACHING IN THE TEMPLE

Golden Text: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the great and first commandment. And a second like unto it is this, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."—Matthew 22:37-39.

Lesson: Matthew 22:1 to 23:39. Devotional Reading: Psalm 15.

Explanations and Comments

The Pharisees' Question About Tribute, chapter 22:15-22.—Then after listening to Christ's parables which were plainly a warning to them (Matthew 21:45), the Pharisees took counsel how they might ensnare Him in His talk, hoping to lead Him on to say something which they could report as treason and thus secure from the Roman Governor a death sentence for Him. They took counsel with the Herodians, whom they hated, but their common hatred of Jesus was stronger than their mutual hatred. The Herodians were the court party, a political party that came into existence with the rise to power of Herod the Great. Their desire was to have a Jewish kingdom established under the Herodian dynasty. The Pharisees, the strictest religious sect among the Jews, were bitterly opposed to Roman rule. They should be their earthly king and free them from Roman domination.

Pharisees and Herodians together came to Jesus and began their attack with a preamble which meant that the question they were about to propose was a dangerous one to answer, but they knew He was not afraid of consequences. The words were intended to conciliate Him and put Him off His guard, but it was nevertheless a fine tribute to Jesus from His enemies when they said that He was true, that He taught the truth, and was fearless in His preaching of the truth.

Since He was such a man as they said, they wanted His judgment on a matter of controversy: Did He deem it lawful to give tribute to Caesar? If Jesus answered that it was lawful to give tribute, the people would turn against Him; and if He said it was not lawful, He could be charged with treason. Jesus saw through their purpose and exclaimed, "Why make ye trial of Me, ye hypocrites?" Jesus could always see the insincerity of the would-be flatterer.

Then Jesus asked for a coin, the tribute money. They brought Him a denarius, a coin worth about eight pence half-penny, as the Bible margin tells us.

"Whose is this image and superscription?" Jesus asked. They must perform answer, "Caesar's." "Render therefore unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's," returned Jesus. "And unto God the things that are God's." Jesus solemnly added: "When Florence Nightingale was asked the secret of her life, her reply was, 'I have worked hard, very hard, that is all; and I have never refused anything to God.'"

Vienna, Austria, boasts one of the largest artificial outdoor ice-skating rinks in the world. The sport is enjoyed there throughout the year. The rink accommodates eight thousand persons. The huge machinery which makes the ice is almost as much of a wonder as the rink itself and has served as a model for other similar enterprises.

BRITAIN WOULD CONSIDER LAND SETTLEMENT AID

The Pas, Man.—The British Government is ready to consider any feasible project to promote land settlement in the Carrot River Valley, according to a letter received by town officials from the secretary of state for dominion affairs.

The Carrot River Valley lies to the southwest of The Pas, and includes land in both Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

The letter from the overseas department points out, however, that settlement aid from England would necessarily be subject to certain conditions, such as the Empire Settlement act of 1922, and financial support from either the Federal or Provincial Governments or both. The letter also points out that the British Government does not contemplate purchase or ownership of land in Canada for settlement purposes.

The communication from the British Government says in part that "consideration by His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom of any such scheme of settlement and development must necessarily be governed by the provisions of the Empire Settlement act of 1922, which empowers the secretary of state, in association with the government of any part of His Majesty's dominions or with the public authorities for public or private organizations either in the United Kingdom or in any part of such dominions, to formulate and co-operate in carrying out agreed schemes for affording joint assistance to suitable persons in the United Kingdom, who intend to settle in His Majesty's overseas dominions, provided that the contribution of the secretary of state shall not in any case exceed half of the expenses of the scheme."

"Subject to the above conditions His Majesty's government in the United Kingdom would be prepared to give careful consideration to any concrete proposals for promoting land settlement in Canada by migrants from the United Kingdom, provided such proposals were approved and recommended by, and preferably received a financial contribution from, His Majesty's government in Canada or from the provincial government."

The secretary was instructed by council to forward a copy of the letter to the Minister of Natural Resources in Winnipeg, and also to the Premier of Saskatchewan.

Preference Is Re-Established

Australian Government Will Continue Preference To Returned Soldiers

Canberra, Australia.—The Labor Government of Australia has, in the face of strong public opinion, moderated one of its ordinances passed in favor of the trades union movement.

Prime Minister James Scullin announced the government was reverting to the former regulation which gave first preference to returned soldiers on government work contracts, and second preference to trades unionists.

The recently-announced decision of the government to abolish the preference to ex-soldiers unless they were also trades unionists, roused a storm of indignation, and veterans' organizations all over Australia were commencing to organize a campaign to fight the government's action.

Expect Premier King Will Be Candidate

Prince Albert Liberal Association Working On That Assumption

Prince Albert.—From Dr. G. A. Robertson, president of the Prince Albert Federal Liberal Association, it was learned that the organization is working on the assumption that Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King will again run in this riding.

"The premier," Dr. Robertson stated, "had assured us that as long as we want him, he will be the Liberal candidate for this constituency. Practically all the polls have already forwarded resolutions of confidence in Mr. King to us. A convention will be held only as a matter of form but the date has not yet been decided upon."

Conservatives in the riding are holding a nominating convention here, June 6, and among the names mentioned as probable candidates is that of George Brown, well-known Northern Conservative; D. L. Burgess, Macdonald, who opposed Premier King at a previous election is also mentioned.

Harry Davis, unofficial leader of the Labor element in Prince Albert, when asked recently if his forces contemplated taking an active part in the coming election, declared that such was not the present intention but that they were gathering their strength for the next provincial tilt.

Many Are Seeking Broadcasting Licenses

Majority Not Likely To Be Considered Until Election Is Over

Ottawa, Ont.—More than 200 applications for broadcasting licenses have been submitted to the Department of Marine, which department has charge of radio services. The great majority of these will likely be held in abeyance until after the general elections, it was intimated by departmental officials. Some of the extensive projects may be authorized but the others will have to wait.

One of the applications which may be granted very soon is one from the Canadian Pacific Railway for permission to erect three high powered broadcasting stations, one in Montreal, one in Toronto and one in western Canada, at a point to be selected later.

The general impression on Parliament Hill is that the committee selected by the House of Commons to consider the recommendations of the royal commission that investigated broadcasting, will not proceed in view of the impending dissolution. Students of the problem think the elections will give an opportunity to crystallize public opinion either for or against public ownership and in the meantime the report will be allowed to stand over.

To Broadcast From Dirigible

Story Of Flight Of R-100 Will Be Given Direct From Airship

London, England.—It was understood here that the Canadian National will broadcast the story of the flight of the R-100 direct from the dirigible.

When asked regarding the above despatch, E. A. Weir, director of radio of the Canadian National Railway, stated that details of an agreement to broadcast the story of the flight were underway and that the broadcast would be carried over the Canadian National network throughout the Dominion, direct from the airship.

Heavy Liquor Shipments

Vancouver, B.C.—With the cancellation of licenses for export liquor warehouses effective June 11, as provided for in Federal Legislation, heavy shipments of liquor from Vancouver to Europe have been made during the past two weeks. Elimination Of Weed Seeds Is Discussed

Proposition Made To House Of Commons By G. G. Cotte

Ottawa, Ont.—Elimination of weed seeds from feed oats and barley was proposed before the agriculture committee of the House of Commons by G. G. Cotte (U.P.A., MacLeod). He wanted the establishment of seed grades of these grains free from weeds and believed weed seeds could be cleaned out of oats and barley.

The difference between the grades of feed oats and of seed oats in the present schedules of the Act, it was explained, is that feed oats may be frozen. Other members of the committee considered the suggestion impracticable. The matter was left over for further consideration.

Exhibiting At British Fairs

Canada Taking Part In Eighteen During Present Year

Ottawa, Canada.—Canada is participating in 18 exhibitions and trade fairs in Great Britain during the present year, in addition to the British Industries Fair which was recently held at the Olympia Building, London, England. Most of these exhibitions are being held under the auspices of the Empire marketing board and will enable Canadian produce to be exhibited in most of the industrial centres of England, Scotland and Ireland. In addition, Canada is actively participating in the six months' International Exhibition at Antwerp, which opens on April 26.

Bill Given Third Reading

Ottawa.—After a tempestuous hour in which there were four roll call divisions, the House of Commons gave third reading to the bill to establish divorce courts in Ontario. The vote on the third reading stood, yeas 100, nays 85.

TRAIN TELEPHONE NOW A FACT

The Canadian National Railways, which first made possible the reception of radio concerts on board a moving train as invention which many first class railroads have since copied, have achieved another mechanical triumph by perfecting the first two-way system of telephone communication in the world with moving trains. The system has been put into public service by the company on "The International Limited," which covers the 334 miles separating Montreal and Toronto in 360 minutes, the fastest train in the world traversing a like distance.

The photograph shows Sir Henry Thornton, Chairman and President of the Canadian National Railways, inaugurating the telephone service from "The International Limited" while the train is travelling at 60 miles an hour. At the train switchboard is J. C. Burkholder, Chief Engineer of the Canadian National Telegraphs, who developed and perfected the train telephone system.

"Wop" May Visits Ottawa

But Distinguished Aviator Slips Away Without Seeing Officials

Ottawa, Ont.—Slipping through the city so quietly that officials of the Department of National Defence, who had been waiting for him, did not know that he had actually been here, Captain W. R. "Wop" May, Edmonton, recently awarded the McKee trophy as the Canadian having contributed most to the cause of aviation in 1929, paid a brief visit to the capital on May 6.

Since the award of the trophy was announced, air officials have been anxious to get in touch with the noted flier, to inform him of his success. Had Col. J. L. Ralston, Minister of National Defence, been aware the winner of the trophy was in the city, his departure would undoubtedly have been delayed in order that formal presentation might be made to him of the great honor he takes back west.

May came down onto the Ottawa River, opposite Rockcliffe aerodrome, in one of the new Bellanca monoplane jets purchased by the Airways Company of which he is chief pilot. After refuelling and having a brief chat with mechanics—during which he spoke rather bashfully of his success in being awarded the prized trophy—May took to the air again, bound for Sudbury, Ont., and eventually Edmonton.

Canada Is Confident

President Of C.P.R. Sees Good Future For Business

Montreal, Que.—General confidence throughout Canada is unshaken by the combination of unusual conditions which has developed the present situation; the country's strength has been effectively proven and the future is not to be viewed with any degree of apprehension, in the opinion of E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, as declared to the shareholders of the company at the annual meeting held here.

While a number of factors, particularly the failure to market Canadian grain, have slowed up freight traffic, it is felt there is nothing of a fundamental character to prevent the return of normal business conditions within the next few months.

Request Will Be Considered

C.N.R. May Make The Pas Divisional Headquarters

The Pas, Man.—The request of town officials that The Pas be made the headquarters for the Canadian National Railways lines in northern Manitoba, will receive active consideration, according to advices received from the department of railways and from Sir Henry Thornton, C.N.R. president.

A letter received by the town clerk states that the minister of railways will make inquiries in the matter, and will keep local officers advised of developments.

CIVIL RIOTS IN INDIA REPORTED TO BE SUBSIDING

London, England.—As suddenly as they flared up India's civil disobedience disorders subsided. From a widely flung storm of violent encounters Mahatma Gandhi's campaign of resistance to the government simmered down to a few widely separated clashes.

The worst of these, costing nine lives, occurred at Chittagong, which was also the scene on April 18, of a battle in which two Europeans and several natives were killed.

Again at Calcutta armed police were compelled to act. A mob raided the police station, smashed in its iron gates and there checked. Several police officers suffered injuries and 25 arrests occurred.

Simla reported officially that four deaths had occurred in recent riots. In the civilian hospital 96 persons were treated. To this number were added 18 police injury cases.

Advices from Delhi stated that patrols of cavalry, infantry and armored cars were being maintained there.

The arrival of V. J. Patel at Bombay, and his pronouncement for a widespread boycott against British goods was the outstanding development in that district. Despatches did not indicate how Mahatma Gandhi's followers would accept this attitude.

The comparative quiet in Bombay was broken only by an early onslaught of a mob upon textile workers who sought to prevent reopening of cotton mills.

The government continues to avoid any utterance which might tend to inflame the native mind. Moderates Indian opinion. It was stated, continues to support the government.

There was a hopeful forward looking attitude for the proposed round-table discussion.

Thus far the government forces emerged with only one fatality, the killing of a British citizen in Peshawar. This was pointed to as a matter for congratulation as well as an indication of the prompt action taken by the authorities.

Plan Important Survey Work

Far North Area To Be Mapped From Edmonton, Alberta.

Edmonton, Alberta.—Aerial surveys of the far north, inspection work by three field parties under direction of the Department of the Interior, opening of a branch office at Fort Smith, and the transfer to that point of staff from Winnipeg and The Pas, have been announced here.

An aeroplane base is to be established at Fort Resolution, arrangements having been made by the Department of the Interior with the Royal Canadian Air Force. This will be utilized to facilitate important survey work which will be carried out by the Federal Government.

These steps to increase staff and services in the far north are being undertaken by the Department of the Interior in view of the enlarged operations of exploration companies and prospectors.

Will Make Tour Of Dominion

New York.—Hon. J. E. Fenton, Australian Minister of Trade and Customs, who arrived here recently, after attending the London Naval Conference as Australian delegate, will travel through Canada on his return trip to the continent. He will visit Eastern Canadian cities and then journey westward, reaching Vancouver, May 24, sailing from Victoria, on the liner "Araonaki," May 28.

Election Likely In July

Ottawa.—A July election seems now assured. Premier King announced that as soon as the legislation on the order paper with some minor additions could be agreed with Opposition parties be adopted he would dissolve or prorogue parliament and permit the people to choose their representative to the Empire Economic Conference in London, England, in September.

Great Britain's wealth is estimated at $113,500,000,000, and that of Germany at $97,500,000,000.

Notes of the Elections

At the Stony Plain Liberal Primary, held Monday, the following were elected, from 14 contestants, to the Nomination convention, held next day: A. E. Michael, Dr. Walton, M. S. Moyer, Wm. Kelly, G. Zucht, John Barrie.

At the meeting of Holborn U. F. Local H. J. McDonald and H. J. Woodley were elected delegates to the Nominating convention Friday May 23. The U. F. W. A. elected Messrs. L. M. Larson and J. F. Kimmerly.

Mr. Heuben Larson has been appointed Returning Officer for the Stony Plain constituency—a $150 job, where a poll is held.

In view of the fact that he will be unable to obtain the nomination at any of the political conventions, Mr. D. H. Lent has decided to allow his name to appear on that of the Independent Farmers' ticket.

Election lists for the provincial election are to be posted by the enumerators by June 7; two days later will be nomination day; and the enumerators will sit for the revision of the lists on Tuesday, June 17.

Judging by present appearances when the U. F. nominating convention of Stony Plain Constituency meets here on Friday, May 23d, it will be no one-sided affair, as it is an open secret that there will be two, at least, who will be willing to carry the U. F. banner on June 19th.

Quite a few of the local politicians listened in Saturday night to Liberal Leader McDonald's speech which was broadcast from Macleod, where a convention was in session.

Edmonton Journal: Four are seeking the U. F. A nomination in Vegreville. There must be a few farmers left who believe their party will still be in power after June 19th.

Some of the U. F. members who sat in the recent legislature declare that their organization is more firmly entrenched than ever before, while it would not suffer over the grain situation or weakness in stocks, as farmers realised it was a general condition that could not possibly have been avoided.

Prince of Wales to Launch Empress of Britain

A royal compliment to Canada as much as to the "Canadian Pacific", was the opinion of E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway and chairman of the Canadian Pacific Steamships, Ltd., when announcing that His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales had consented to act as sponsor of the new giant liner of the Canadian Pacific fleet, the "Empress of Britain."

"We are greatly gratified", said Mr. Beatty, to learn that His Royal Highness has promised to find time to go up to the Clyde to sponsor our new ship. The Prince of Wales is one of the busiest men in Europe, and I take it that he has been led to do so out of his love for this country and his keen interest in all things Canadian."

The "Empress of Britain" will be the largest ship built in Great Britain since 1914.

The ceremonial launching, at which the Prince of Wales will be the central figure, will take place at the Clyde side yards of John Brown & Company, the first anniversary of the opening of largest hotel in the British Empire, the Royal York, Toronto, by the Governor-General of Canada.

The "Empress of Britain", besides being the greatest liner entering a Canadian port, will be the most palatial and up-to-date vessel afloat and, with her speed, will make possible a transatlantic crossing of five days or less between Canada and Great Britain, and will greatly shorten the journey between Europe and Canada and the Middle and Western States. The mammoth liner will be in service next summer, making regular voyages between Southampton, Cherbourg and Quebec.

By the new, up-to-date police signal system which Toronto officially took over the other day, with considerable ceremony, the Police Department is enabled to transmit a description of a stolen car, hold-up night or day, for the conduct of ordinary routine business and communication of orders. CHAPTER XII—Continued

"Well, I was bursting to tell you—seemed as if I couldn't get here quick enough. I knew Charmian was out, too, and thought maybe you'd like company. Besides, I wanted to borrow a lump o' butter for my dinner. I almost forgot it, same as I forgot to order when the boy come round. Don't you get up, Grandma. I know your ice box most as well as I know my own."

"And good reason, too!" murmured Grandma to herself as Miss Lizzie waddled off. "Seems as if in the last thirty years there's nothing Lizzie Baker hasn't borrowed of me—unless it's my tooth brush."

She turned to the window, stared for a moment, and then exclaimed: "Why, here comes Lawyer Garfield! What on earth does he want of me?"

CHAPTER XIII

Charmian was finding her old schoolmate a rather unsuitable companion this morning. Once Grandma's cheery presence was left behind, he relapsed into silence, and was to all appearances giving his entire attention to the car. He didn't speak until they drew up before the Bascomb house with its expanse of glaring window glass.

"I'll run in," said Charmian. "I can get away from Emmy quicker than you can; and we mustn't loiter."

"I'm not liable to loiter with Emmy Bascomb," replied Jim, stepping out before Charmian could move. "Of all the bodes . . ."

He left the sentence unfinished, and strode up the path, while Charmian, who agreed with him about Emmy, smiled to herself as she watched him enter the side door without waiting to knock. She was regarding the new windows disapprovingly when he came out, tossed Grandma's catalogue onto the back seat, and said, as he started the engine: "Quick work that—considering Emmy's ordering a hat—by mail!"

"The suspicion of a smile curved his lips, and Charmian laughed outright. 'Did she ask your advice, Jim? I suppose she considered you an authority!'"

He threw her a reproachful glance, but answered: "She showed me the picture, and asked whether to get blue, like her new waist, or black that'll go with everything. Ezra's in favor of the blue, Emmy thought it might be extravagant. I voted with Ezra, not because I cared a darn which she got, but because I saw it was what she wanted."

"Tactful Jim! I didn't know you were a diplomat."

"There's a lot you don't know about me," he responded cryptically, and once more retired into silence.

Charmian, who feared to say the wrong thing, said nothing at all for a half mile; but as they climbed the hill that divided the two villages, she suggested: "Let's waste five minutes and stop under that oak tree. I love this view, Jim, and I haven't been here all summer. How small and peaceful the village looks from here. Somehow it always makes me think of 'O little town of Bethlehem.' Doesn't it ever make you feel that way, Jimmy, especially on a winter evening when the lights shine out from the houses?"

The young man, who had obeyed and stopped the car, was leaning forward on the steering wheel, his eyes searching the valley so far below.

"You're a queer kid, Charmian," he said quietly. "I guess you see things I don't see at all, and never will. It's mighty pretty up here, but I'd never think of comparing South Wickfield with Bethlehem. What put such an idea into your head?"

He was so genuinely puzzled that the girl laughed.

"Oh, you can laugh!" he burst out unexpectedly, "but it's no laughing matter to me. It makes me feel a thousand miles away from you. Grandma says you don't like the Bascombs' windows, or at least, she doesn't like 'em herself, which is the same thing."

"This is a lightning change of subject," commented Charmian.

"It's no change of subject at all," corrected Jim. "And if we're going to get back before dinner—"

He started the car so suddenly that the girl lost her balance, and for a moment her "woman's crowning glory" brushed his shoulder.

"Sorry," Jim apologized. "I didn't see that rock."

He released the arm which he had instinctively thrust out to help her, and Charmian said: "Didn't you? For a minute I thought it might be your manner of inviting me to a petting party."

"I don't pet that way," said Jim, and actually thrust out to help her. "That's better," approved Charmian.

"What?"

"The smile. It makes you look more human. You've a terribly grim face, Jim, when you're upset mentally. Sometimes it scares me."

"Who said I was mentally upset?" he demanded, scowling.

"No one had to say it. It's been written all over you for the last hour. I suspect that I'm responsible for it in a measure, and that makes me sad. Won't you smile and be friends?"

Jim smiled.

"You didn't quote correctly did you?" he inquired.

Charmian only laughed, and asked, as the car slowed down before a small, brown, shabby cottage: "Is this where you collect your interest? It doesn't look as if the interest would—well, come easy."

Jim nodded, and reached for a brief case containing papers.

"Oh, Jim!" Charmian spoke softly so as not to be overheard by any one within. "how can the poor soul meet things like interest? She has three children, hasn't she?"

"Five," he corrected, and stepped out onto the grass-grown sidewalk.

"But—but where does she get the money to pay you? She can't possibly—"

"You don't have to worry about that," broke in Jim lightly, and turned away.

A queer, sick feeling crept slowly into the girl's heart. This didn't seem like the Jimmy Bennett she had always known. Did all men change when it came to business matters? she asked herself. Did none of them feel compassion for a woman who must be struggling as this poor woman must be struggling to keep the wolf from that shabby, nagging door?

Was it just part of the day's work to them—collecting what must be the pitiful savings of weeks and months? And was Jim, who seemed so kind, like all the rest? Didn't he care . . .

Charmian pulled herself together suddenly, realizing that Jim had been gone some time, and that unless he hurried Doctor Carter would undoubtedly die on the contents of a cold bean pot. Then the door opened, and though the woman smiled and shook hands with Jim, Charmian saw the unmistakable traces of recent tears in her red-rimmed eyes, and the girl's heart hardened a bit toward her old playmate and the hard, harsh world of business that was a part of him.

"Did she pay it?"

The question came almost against her will as they started back.

"She did," said Jim. "That's why I went there, wasn't it?"

"And you don't feel like—like Shylock?" burst from Charmian in sudden, overwhelming indignation. Jim looked at her in amazement.

"Why in thunder should I feel like Shylock?"

His voice was cheerful, more cheerful than it had been since they started out.

"If you don't know," Charmian replied coldly, "it would be useless for me to try to tell you." And if you she who was silent on the ride home.

CHAPTER XIII

Sorry the ride wasn't more of a success," said Jim, as he left Charmian at the side door.

He smiled rather wistfully; but it was the words, not the smile that lingered with her as she turned on the stove drafts. Something in Jim's voice had brought back the uncomfortable feeling she had experienced earlier that day, when she thought she had hurt him. And he was right. The ride hadn't been much of a success. Charmian was, she told herself, ridiculously disturbed about it. Only the persistent pounding of Great-grandfather Davis's gold-headed cane, roused her to the fact that she hadn't run in to speak to Grandma, as was her almost invariable habit on reaching home.

"Well," exclaimed the old lady, as her granddaughter appeared in the doorway, "so its you! I didn't know but what it was a tramp, so I made all the noise I could. Where's Jimmy? Gone? Dear me, I had something to tell him. You needn't rush round so, childy, because the doctor won't be here to dinner. They're taking some one to the hospital at Red-boro. He telephoned an hour ago. Sit down, Charmian, and let the dinner wait. There's news a-plenty."

"News? Who brought it?"

"Lizzie Baker; and like to die of apoplexy she was, from running. And after she'd gone home (by the back door after borrowing some butter), Gam Garfield brought the rest of it. He wanted to know the value of those beads we sold the deacon!"

"KING OF PAIN"
LINIMENT

When Food Sours

About two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomachs. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been overstimulated. There is excess acid. The way to correct it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

The right way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—just a tasteless dose in water. It is pleasant, efficient, and harmless. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

It is the quick method. Results come almost instantly. It is the approved method. You will never use another when you know.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting acid stomachs. Each bottle contains full directions—any drugstore.

Charmian sank limply into a chair. "Don't tell me we've got a law suit on our hands!"

"And no sooner was Lizzie gone than I looked out and saw Gam Garfield crossing the street. It gave me a start! He walked in kind of solemn, too. He likes to look that way when he has a case—sort of important. But I wasn't going to have little Gam Garfield put on airs with me; so I said, 'Morning, Gam. I was just thinking of the time I caught you hanging by the seat of your trousers from our Porter apple tree.'"

You were seven years old, and you'd eaten yourself sick, so I didn't have the heart to give you the spanking you deserved for stealing fruit! That sort of—well, took the wind out of his sails, as you might say."

Little Helps For This Week

"Whosoever will come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow Me."—Mark viii. 34.

The cross is not so hard to bear. Since I have learned to say, "O Lord, I walk not anywhere. Unless Thou lead'st the way."

—S. R. Leroy.

Both above and below, which way soever thou dost turn thee, everywhere thou shalt find the cross; and everywhere of necessity thou must have patience if thou wilt have inward peace, and enjoy an everlasting crown.—Thomas A. Kempis.

To repel one's cross is to make it heavier.—Henri Frederic Amiel.

Daughter Is Stronger Now

"My daughter Catherine is fifteen years old. She was very irregular, often sick at her stomach and had to stay in bed two or three days at a time. One of your booklets was sent to us by mail so I got her a bottle of Vegetable Compound. Catherine has been taking it regularly and she is gaining in weight and every way. I told the neighbors and four other girls are taking it with good results."—Mrs. Clarence Jenkinson, Box 14, Thornloe, Ontario.

Hansen's Corners.

The captain of the Meowassin Invincible baseball team is busy arranging matches with the nearby school teams.

A most enjoyable dance was held in the White Whale schoolhouse last Friday.

The Hansen Corners' mail fabricator has completely recovered from an attack of writer's cramp.

A very successful U. F. A. organization meeting was held in the schoolhouse last week, when a large crowd gathered, in spite of the inclement weather. Mr. Wilkinson was in the chair. The principal speakers were Mr. Pitzler and Mr. Erickson. The meeting came to a close with Mr. Washburn, ex-M.P., giving a very entertaining story about an Irish man and his Pet Wild Cat up a Tree. All expressed themselves as having had a good time, and refreshments were served.

A large gathering took place Saturday, with 63 present. Messrs G. Erickson and Pitzler were the speakers. Mrs. H. McDonald spoke on the principles of the U. F. W. A.

The person who got hurt at Meowassin lifting a hay-rack some time ago, will recover, but will never be the same!

Politics! and nothing but politics and elections, are the sole topics of conversation hereabouts at the present time.

A large and enthusiastic assemblage of friends met last night at the home of Mr. Don McDonald, to offer him congratulations on the anniversary of his natal day. A beautiful four story birthday cake was the centerpiece with about 50 candles on it. Your Correspondent was informed about a dozen or so candles had been shaken off.

Here and There

With a prepared acreage greater by 31 per cent than that of 1929, a better moisture situation and other indications promising general good conditions for the year, the Canadian West is now busy seeding, according to the latest report of the agricultural department of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Nearly $28,000,000 was voted by the Ontario Legislature recently for hydro-electric development work to be undertaken during the year in the province for the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, a provincial government organization. Over $18,000,000 is to be spent on the extension of the Niagara hydro system, upon which many millions have already been spent to provide cheap electric power over a wide area of rural and urban territory.

"There is a very large amount of capital in England ready for investment and it is felt in that country that it should go to Canada," said Major L. A. Jones, economic editor of the London Morning Post, who landed recently at Saint John from S.S. Duchess of Athol on a trip to Canada for the purpose of fostering better economic relations between the Dominion and the Motherland.

Four new game refuges adding 500 square miles to the existing 640 square miles of game sanctuaries in New Brunswick are to be established in that province for the purpose of preservation of the game supply, according to information given by Hon. Charles D. Richards, Minister of Lands and Mines.

Fish caught by commercial fishermen in Canadian waters last year and a value of about $55,000,000. Over 100 countries bought fish and fish products from the Dominion in 1929, valued at $28,000,000. More than 80,000 persons find employment in Canada in the fishing industry.

The wild rose is now the floral emblem of the province of Alberta. The provincial parliament has enacted the legislation making this flower which grows so profusely all over Alberta, the provincial symbol. Choice of the emblem was put up to the school children of Alberta and the wild rose captured most votes, with the tiger lily next in favor.

Homestead entries taken out through the Dominion Land Office at Edmonton during the month of March last broke all records for that month with a total of 277 homesteads and 12 soldier grants which compares with 230 homesteads in March, 1928, the previous record March.

Contrary to the general impression, Canadian investments in the United States are greater, per capita, than American investments in the Dominion. An official statement just issued shows that the average Canadian has $100 invested in the United States and the average American about $29 invested in Canada.

Something more than appearance will be necessary for grain to win a prize at the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference to be held at Regina, July 25 to August 6, 1932. All entries getting into the prize money at this exhibition will be expected, be in demand for seed. It is because of the importance of the effect of the distribution of this prize seed to farmers in Canada and throughout the world that the Awards Committee has decided that the usual judging standards will be supplemented by a growing test, which in reality is the test supreme.
